00:00 [Soft wind blowing over stone ruins, traditional Oud melody starts]

00:12 Welcome to Jerash, the city of a thousand columns. My grandfather used to say that every stone here has a memory, if you listen closely enough.

00:45 I remember when I was a young boy, we would walk through the Oval Plaza before the sun reached its peak. The shadows of the columns would stretch like giant fingers across the limestone.

01:22 People think of these as just ruins, but for us, they were our playground, our classroom, and our connection to the titans of the past.

@omar_explores Golden hour at the Oval Plaza. It's hard to imagine that thousands of years ago, people walked these same stones, sharing their own stories under this same sun. #Jerash #History #Jordan
